

BOONE COUNTY

DISTILLING CO.

MADE BY GHOSTS.™

HERITAGE

Back in the late 1800s, when Petersburg was a booming town of distillers, blacksmiths, lumbermen and farmers, it took teamwork to meet the needs of the growing community. Men, women and children worked together to accomplish a long day's work, with immense satisfaction found in the accomplishments. That's how communities are built.

Lewis Loder's tavern was such a place. Loder, a bookkeeper, ran the White Hall Tavern at Tanner and Front Streets, proudly built his community one glass at a time. One of his favorite treats was serving shots of bourbon over rich ice cream, and as the sun set on the Ohio River his hard-working patrons enjoyed a sweet reward for their honest day's work.

We recall that moment with our bourbon cream blended with signature Boone County's Eighteen 33 and rich, alabaster cream. Pour it over ice, ice cream, or in your coffee. Pour it and remember.

BOTTLE

Meticulously designed and molded exclusively for Boone County Distilling Company, taking cues from historical amber glass bottle shape reminiscent of 1800's and pre-prohibition. The intricate embossing markedly resurrects the birthright of the original distillery seal while pleasing the bartender with a harmonized grasp for neat or rocks requests.
